Roncalio bill goes to panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., said Tuesday a bill he introduced to establish an Indian art and cultural center on the Wind River Reservation has been referred to the House Interior Committee.

He said the plan contemplates a classroom facility and a main meeting hall estimated to cost $1,019,000.

He said the proposal was initiated by Central Wyoming College in Riverton and that two conferences were held in 1968 and 1969 to seek a grant to the college under the Higher Education Facilities Act.

Roncalio said questionnaires circulated to some 500 Shoshone and Arapahoe Indians in Fremont County indicated overwhelming support for the project.

Roncalio said the center would serve as a source of unification for Indians, be used to store Indian documents, be used to exhibit Indian art, have an education program in the visual and performing arts, a social center and serve as a source to market Indian trade items and for an Indian studies program.

He said the center would be used in conjunction with an Indian studies program now available at Central Wyoming College.

Gov. Wendell Anderson issued extradition papers Tuesday, allowing the return of Costello to Wyoming.

Costello's attorneys are scheduled to seek a writ of habeas corpus in District Court Thursday. In effect, this is an appeal from the extradition order.

Costello is charged in the death of Eunice Kratochvil, 33, whose body was found near Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 8, 1970. Her body was not identified until two years later.

Costello had been arrested earlier, then freed, then was re-arrested Tuesday after the extradition warrant was approved by the governor.

Dog finds escapee

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) — A police dog flushed an escaped man from beneath a Casper building Wednesday after he had run out of a courtroom following an order to take him to prison.

Officers said Hendryx popped out the other side of the building in a few moments.

Hendryx escaped after he was ordered sent to prison for violating his probation. Officers said after the ruling by District Court Judge R. M. Forrister, Hendryx pushed down a jailer and ran out of the courtroom and out of the courthouse.

AIM wants high school

LANDER, Wyo. (AP) — Representatives of the militant American Indian Movement (AIM) threatened Tuesday night to step into a Fremont County school reorganization plan unless it include a high school on the Wind River Indian Reservation.

The threat came at a meeting of the Fremont County Organization Committee in which a four-district plan was reviewed and given approval to be sent to the State Organization Committee.

The plan would split up the reservation so that Arapahoe students from Arapahoe School would be bused to the high school at Riverlton and the students from Millcreek and Fort Washakie would be bused to the Lander District.

A five-district plan was rejected by the state committee last year.

The government alleged the practice had been under way since 1969 and affected work over 40 hours per week.

The amount of money being sought on behalf of the workers was not specified in the suit, filed in U.S. District Court.

Cody is chosen parade marshal

THERMOPOLIS, Wyo. — Bill Cody, grandson of Col. William F. (Buffalo Bill) Cody, will be the 1972 "Gift of the Waters" parade marshal, according to Dr. Frank Manning, parade chairman.

American Heritage lecture to civic organizations and conventions.

Born at the Buffalo Bill Scout's Nest Ranch in North Platte, Neb., Cody obtained his early day schooling at Cody. Landmarks pushed as historic sites

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — The state committee on nominations to the National Register of Historic Places has proposed the addition of six Wyoming landmarks as national historic sites.

The historian for the Wyoming Recreation Commission, Ned Frost, said the landmarks must be listed in the national register to be eligible for federal grants under the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966.

The sites recommended by the committee are:

—Jim Baker's Cabin, a log fort structure originally located on the Little Snake River in Carbon County but since moved to Lion's Park in Cheyenne. The cabin is being dismantled and eventually will be reconstructed on the grounds of the new state office building.

—The Union Pacific depot in Cheyenne.

—Inyan Kara Mountain 10 miles south of Sundance.

—Peryam ranch house three miles north of Encampment. The ranch was the home of one of the first settlers in that area. —Pahaska Teepee, 50 miles west of Cody, used by Buffalo Bill as a hunting lodge.

—Ames Monument, a granite pyramid 20 miles east of Laramie and built by the Union Pacific Railroad as a memorial to construction of the first transcontinental rail link.
